SIBERIA LEFT MAIL

ple had 150 bags prepared and at the dock at just five o'clock.

He says that the postoffice people sent word to the Siberia late in the afternoon that they might be late and asked if the boat could not be held for fifteen minutes. After four-thirty word came back that the request would be denied, and word was again sent to the liner's officers that the bulk of the mail would reach the wharf before five.

Praet states that at five minutes to five a motor-truck loaded with mail sacks was dispatched from the postoffice and made a good run to the Alakea wharf, arriving at five. He claims that the Siberia started from the wharf before five o'clock.

Hackfeld's Explanation.

F. W. Kiehn, on behalf of Messrs. H. Hackfeld & Co., the agents for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, interviewed this morning, expressed himself as follows:

"The mail for the Siberia arrived at the wharf yesterday afternoon at 5:02, 5:09 and 5:12. These times are verified by the postal clerks in charge of the wagons.

"As soon as the discharging and loading of the steamer was finished, about 4:25, Superintendent of Wharf, Rely phoned to the postoffice notifying them of the fact that the vessel was ready to proceed and only waiting for the mail, and requesting them to have the bags down on time.

"At 4:50 Mr. Carr's assistant phoned to me asking if it could be arranged to have the steamer held for about fifteen minutes, to which I replied that in this instance I was very sorry that I should be unable to oblige them as I have done repeatedly on previous occasions, as it was a matter of grave importance to have the steamer get away on time owing to connections to be made in San Francisco.

"I left the office after the five o'clock whistle had blown and walked up Fort street. On arriving at the Judd building I saw the auto-truck of the postoffice loaded high up with mail turn the corner of Merchant street into Fort, attended to by Postoffice Clerk Kenake.

"This, as I was later informed, was the first load to reach the Alakea wharf, as previously stated, at 5:02.

"As a matter of fact had the Siberia not encountered a typhoon she would probably have arrived at Honolulu at daylight on the 30th inst., anyway, not later than 1 p. m. of that day. In the former case she would have undoubtedly sailed in the evening of the same day, and in the latter case not later than 10 o'clock on Friday morning.

"For a great length of time it has been impressed on the postoffice officials that it would be to the advantage of all concerned to have the mail brought down to the steamers as soon as it is put up in pouches at the postoffice, and not to have it held at the postoffice till all the mail is ready and then sent down to the steamer at the last minute, delaying everything."

RODRIGUES FOUR TIMES REPORTED

Four different reports as to the whereabouts of Rodrigues, the escaped Porto Rican convict, have come to hand during the last twenty-four hours.

E. W. Congdon reported to Chief McDuffie that he came across a suspicious individual early this morning on Punchbowl, whom he thought might have been Rodrigues.

Congdon and a party of young people were taking the air in an auto on Punchbowl about 4 a. m. today. At the end of the road the headlights flashed upon the body of a man projecting from a cave in the hillside. Congdon, Blackwell and McGreer jumped out and investigated, and Congdon states that the man was lying with a gun clasped to his breast and beside him two empty bottles and a package. His feet were encased in white canvas shoes.

If it hadn't been for the fact that there were ladies in the party Congdon would have inquired further into the identity of the man.

Chief McDuffie investigated this morning but found nothing.

Yesterday Rodrigues was reported as having been seen by a woman in the gulch bordering the ascent to Tantalus.

Mrs. Taylor, the florist, reported on Thursday that some employees of hers had flushed a strange man near her premises in Nuuanu Valley and that he had evidently been sleeping and cooking on the spot where he was disturbed.

Chief McDuffie went up the valley yesterday and found a place where some open-air cooking had been done, also some partly roasted breadfruit. This morning McDuffie received word from Travis, a plantation policeman, that Rodrigues had been seen this morning in company with two other men in Kipapa gulch. A section lina followed the trio and was noticed by them. The men thereupon ran down the gulch and disappeared in the cane.

Invitation to Man-Hunt.

The following communication, dated today, from Manager Gibb of the Honolulu Sugar Company, has been received by McDuffie:

"You have my support in everything you state about the escaped convict Rodrigues not being easily found. You and a hundred more besides could hide indefinitely on this plantation if you had provisions, and all the police and press together could not make a catch.

"I can vouch for it that you have done some hard work tramping and lying out at night endeavoring to capture Rodrigues.

"Kindly convey an invitation from me to the press of Honolulu to come out and have a man hunt. I can direct them to within half a mile of Rodrigues. Yours truly,

"JAMES GIBB."

NOW REHEARSING NEWEST GAGS

Director Cunha has completed all arrangements for staging the Healan! Beat Club minstrels, rehearsed the songs with those who are to take part in the choruses and is spending the last few days, prior to the opening on Thursday, writing "gags" and putting it up to the boys to make good in the delivery of them. Most of these are new to Honolulu. Some of them will be heard for the first time, for they evolved in the classic head of Mr. Cunha who has developed a means of electrifying the public that will be found irresistible.

In the company are several near-professionals and a number who are quite in the swim among player folk. There are good singers among the new amateurs and their work is a credit to them, and securing their services puts another feather in the cap of Mr. Cunha. Judging from the program as prepared there seems no reason why this performance should not be a financial success as it will be an artistic gem. Aside from the fact that the donors to the fund to bring a crew from the States will get a direct and immediate return for their expenditure there is the satisfaction of contributing to a good cause.

Among the end songs will be the popular "College Rag" by a college man who can put the college swing into every line. Then there will be the expected parody on the event that has recently set the tongues of the town wagging. Willie Kerr will sing of the Banana Currie that tickled the palates of a portion of the community and produced indigestion in the systems of thousands, a regular epidemic of indigestion, to be exact.

Clarence Waterman, the sweet-voiced baritone, will sing in the first part "Don't Wake Me Up." The olio will be entirely in white face and those who take part are mostly professionals. There will be some excellent dancing and a comedy sketch, "Auntie," will be given by Robert McKim, Miss Mathews and Miss Dann.

PORTUGUESE AND HAWAII.

El Luso, in this morning's issue, fires a hot broadside at a Portuguese contemporary which has been vigorously opposing Portuguese immigration, by quoting Consul Canavaro as follows:

"In my opinion the Portuguese of the fatherland, as a general thing, better their condition by emigrating to Hawaii."

The money raised today will go toward acquiring a piece of land in Kaimuki for the erection of a new building for the society. Funds are badly needed.
